CITIZENS TO HELP PYTHIANS

Mass Meeting at Willard Hall to Devise Plans of Co-operation.

ALL WILL WORK WITH A WILL

Commissioner Ross Presided-He Said the Encampment Must Be a Success-Mr. Goodhart Speaks for the Knights-Committee of Fifteen Appointed to Arrange Affairs.

A mass meeting of citizens was called yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at Willard's hall to devise plans for co-operating with the committee of the Knights of Pythias to provide for the entertainment of visitors to the grand encampment, which is to be held here in August. Among those present were Com missioner Ross, Lawrence Gardner-John Jay Edson, Frederick Keily, James McNabb, jr.; Richard Goodhart, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Knights of Pythias; J. E. Smith, chairman of the public comfort committee; Capt. Gibson, Marshal Wines, Scott C. Bone, Theodore Noves and Harry P. Godwin, and a number of business men and nerchants.

Commissioner Ross called the meeting to Commissioner Ross caned the meeting to order, and was subsequently elected to the chair. James McNabb, jr., was appointed secretary. Commissioner Ross spoke briefly, saying that it was necessary that the people should take hold of the matter of entertaining the visitors and make the encampment a suc He said that the men who were to encamp were honorable men, and inasmuch as arge lunds had previously been subscribed to aid encampments he thought the people aid encampments he thought the people should give the local committee material help. On behalf of the Pythians, Mr. Goodhart gave a short history of the organization. He aid he saw no reason why the same cordial reicome should not be extended to the visitwelcome should not be extended to the visi-fung knights as has been done to other socie-ties, and he asked that the citizens of Wash-ington do all in their power to make it comfortable for those who will be here. REUNITING PEOPLE NORTH AND SOUTH.

The coming of the Pythians will, he declared, reunite the people of the North and South, and there will be more from the latter section of the country than have been to this city since the into war. The Pythians have done more to unite the people of the two sec-tions than any other association because they tions than any other association, because they have active members in all of the states of the

A FORTUNATE FIRE

[Susan Hartley Swett in Portland Transcript.] It was a very unfortunate morning at the Gibson farm, and Will Pinkham had been blamed for every misfortune that had hap-pened. In the first place, the gobbler, who was the last survivor of a prize breed, though uncommonly flerce and untamable, had in some way got out of the coop-the farmer protested that Will had left the door openand pounced upon the back of a lady with a red snawl on who was visiting at the squire's. And the squire's bired man had thrown a ne at him, wounding him so that it was feared he would die. Then a whole pall of milk had been spilled at milk-pail time on account of Will's careless handling, Mrs. Gibson said, but in reality because the pail

Gibson said, but in reality because the pail had rusted and suddenly given way. Dobbin had lost a shoe when Will was driving her home from mill, and Blackberry, the best cow had burt her leg very badly by steeping through a hole in the floor which Will had forrection to mend.

It was of no use, Mr. Gibson declared, the boy would never make any kind of a farmer, and as for help, he was just good for nothing. She told him he might as well go back to his uncle's; he could not keep him any longer. Doubtless Will never would make a very good farmer; he was hyrdly strong enough to do rough labor, and then he was very fond of books, and his mind would wan-

WIMAN'S TRIAL ON.

Prosecution Evidence Against the ex-King of Staten Island.

NEW YORK, June 12—A large attendance marked the opening of the second day of the trial of Erastus Wiman for forgery before Judge Ingraham in the court of over and terminer.

Assistant District Attorney Wellman opened for the prosecution. He declared that Mr. Wiman had never been a member of the firm of R. G. Dun & Co., but an employe, who received 16 per cent. of the profits of the firm, or about 880,000 per year.

It was explained how Mr. Wiman, as general manager of the firm of R. G. Dun & Co., bought manager of the firm of R C. Dun & Co., bought all the supplies, such as paper, made all arrangements with Mr. Bullinger (whose name he is charged with forging) and with the Campbell Printing Preas Company.

Mr. Wellman went on to relate that Mr. Wiman, on February 6. 1893, sent to Bookkeeper Wheeler, of R G. Dun & Co., and asked him for a check for $5.000 payable to E. W. Bullinger, that Bullinger never got the check, but that Wiman deposited it in his own bank to his private account.

linger never got the check, but that winnst apposited it in his own bank to his private account.

The prosecution then called its first witness in James Harren, eashier of ft. G. Dun & Co. Mr. Harren testified that in 1892 Mr. Wiman came to him and said that the firm was in debt to E. W. Builinger. He directed witness to draw check payable to Mr. Builinger for $57,783. The check was drawn and indersed by Mr. Wiman.

Cross-examined by Gen. Tracy witness admitted that almost the entire direction of the firm's affairs was under the control of Mr. Wiman, Mr. Dun being away for the greater part of the last ten years.

The second witness of the trial was Edwin B. Builinger, publisher of Builinger's Guide. Mr. Wiman handed him a check for $5,000, drawn February 6, 1891 on the Chemical National bank, supposedly by the witness and so indorsed. Witness and he had never before seen the check and never authorized Mr. Wiman to sign his name to any such instrument. Mr. Wellman thereupon offered the check in evidence.

Then Mr. Wellman called Cyrus H. Taylor, receiving teller of the Seventh National bank, who tostified to having received checks from Mr. Wilman for $5,000 and indorsed, as he thought, by E. W. Builinger.

John H. Reene, bookkeeper in the same bank, produced his ledger to show that the sum had been duly credited to Mr. Wiman's account. At this point a recess was taken.

At the epening of the afternoon session a been duly credited to Mr. Wiman's account. At this point a recess was taken.

At the opening of the afternoon session a tremendous crowd surged about the doors of the courtroom seeking atteithance, but Judge Ingraham had ordered the court attendants to admit no more than could find seak, and his order was carried out.

After several winceases had given testimony Daniel T. Ames was called. He is an expert in chirography. He was shown the Builinger check and a letter written by Mr. Wiman to Mr. Dun, As the defense had already conceded that Mr. Wiman had innorsed the Builinger check Mr. Ames' testimony was not of particular importance.

Ames' testimony was not of particular importance.

Mr. Boardman then rend to the tury the letter previously identified by Expert Ames as that written by Mr. Wiman. It is dated July I, 1891, and is addressed: "Dear Mr. Dun." In it Mr. Wiman contessed to feeling somewhat chaprined at having caused Mr. Dun any displeasure because of his having overdrawn his account $50,000 in two months. He declares himself the victim of misplaced confidence, and closes by saying that he has aiready realized some $11,000 on States Island real estate and hopes to pay a large portion of the indebtedness before the expiration of the month.

The object of the defense in reading the letter was probably to gain the sympathy of the jury. David Bennett Klug, Mr. Wiman's assignes, was requested to testify as to the papers and schedules involved. His testimony had no bearing on the trial, and court adjourned until 10530 to-morrow.

REFUGEES FROM SALVADOR.

Strenuous Efforts to Recover Fugitives Protected by the United States.

La Libertan, Salvador, June 12 .- The newly organized government is making desperate efforts to secure the surrender of the refugees aboard the U. S. S. Bennington, After making formal remonstrance against the extension of asylum to the late vice president and his staff, President Guttierraz has made a demand upon Mr. Pollock, the Amer-ican consul here, for the surrender of the men.

For the time being he waives entirely the question of right of asylum, and, charging that these officials of the late government have been guilty of robbery and embezzlement, demands their surrender under article 2 of the extradition treaty negotiated with the United States in 1870.

Consul Policek consulted over this new phase of the case with Commander Thomas.

phase of the case with Commander Thomas, of the Benuington, and then informed the government that he could not meet the demand until instructed to do so by the Washington officials. He was served with extradition papers regularly drawn and then cabled an account of the affair to Washington.

necount of the affair to Washington.

So far he has not had a response. Meanwhile the refugees are being detained on the Bennington and will not be permitted to take passage on the coasting steamers to a port of safety. The refugees insist that this move of Guttierrax is nothing more than a pretext to obtain their surrender, when he will promptly avenue himself by really punishing them for political reasons.

There was a banquet on board the steamship previous to her departure. Among those of the Commonwealers Disgusted Be cause the Chairman of the Senate Distress Committee Returned His Card-He and Browns to Make a Lecturing Campaign.

TO STAY HERE ALL SUMMER

Coxey Announces That His Army Will Remain Till Winter.

VILAS WOULD NOT SEE HIM

Mesars. Coxev and Browne were among the visitors at the House of Representatives yes terday. They arrived at the Capitol about 11 o'clock, and forthwith proceeded to have a conference with Col. Redstone, and then appeared on the floor of the chamber, where they received quite an ovation at the hands of their friends.

When the session began they adjourned to the corridor and sent in their cards to a number of Congressmen, who in all cases came out at once see them. Their special object was to get some one to introduce object was to get some one to introduce their bill in the House.

Mr. Coxey was quite talkative on the subject of the plans of his army for the next six months. To a representative of The Times he stated that under no circumstances would the camp break up until the Coxey bills have been considered by Congress. Mr. Coxey's plan is to have the army remain where it is for the next six months, and perhaps longer, leaving the men under the charge of the division marshals while he and Browne go out on a lecturing and campaign tour for more recruits. Mr. Coxey said he has by no menns given up his project to assemble half a million men here, and deciated that a large number of people have money now who will need work six months hence, and that at that time it will be easy to get them to come to Washit will be easy to get them to come to Wash-

TIME HAS NOT DIMMED. Asked whether he was not discouraged by the failure of the various industrial armies whose formation had been heralded in the newspapers of the country to get to the national capital, Mr. Coxey said that he was not, as he believed they were all as anxious to get here as they had ever been, and that they would do so in time. As to the New England contingents, he said they were socialists anyway, and that therefore they were no loss, as his army could not, under any circumstances, be associated with any socialistic bodies.

Mr. Coxey then outlined his plan as follows: While he and Browne are off lecturing, the army is to remain here, and they will be supplied with food in the future as they have been in the past, partly by contributions armies whose formation had been heralded supplied with food in the future as they have been in the past, partly by contributions from the residents of the District and partly by cash and supplies which have been re-ceived from outside. Mr. Coxey says he does not wish to impose upon the people of Wash-ington the task of feeding his army. He ington the task of feeding his army. He wanted all the country to do their share. He admitted, however, that unless they did the army would have to break up.

Mr. Coxey then declared that no end of efforts had been made to induce the army to break up and go home. Various Congressmen, in many cases those who represented the districts from which some of the men had come, had made individual offers to supply them with railway tickets to carry them back to their homes. This, according to Mr. Coxey, had been done simply because the Congressmen were unwilling to be bothered in the matter of considering their bills and wanted to get rid of the men. He though it remarkable that there should be so much difficulty in getting his bills introduced into the House, when it had been accomplished in the Senate so easily.

VILAS JILIS THE GENERAL. Another incident which has made Mr. Coxey rather unfriendly to Congress and the Senate in particular is the treatment which he has received at the hands of the Senate committee to receive and consider pe-titions on the prevailing distress, appointed some days ago on the motion of Senator Biackburn. Yesterday Mr. Coxey sent in his eard to Senator Vilas, chairman of the com-mittee, but that Senator sent out word that he would not see him, although he gare no excuse for doing so, and made no suggestion of a time when it would be convenient for him to make an appointment for a hearing before the committee.

Mr. Coxey says that Senator Vilas may be too much of an aristocrat to do his duty in the matter and hear what he and his followers have to say, but that he will try to see the other members of the committee and see if a hearing cannot be arranged.

At this point of the conversation Col. Redstone came up, with a suggestion to Mr. Coxey on a movement to niter the laws regulating the control of the Capitol grounds, and a suggestion that this would be a viola-tion of the Constitution of the United States, Mr. Coxey interrupted the colonel to tell him with a smile that in the District of Colombia the Constitution was not binding. In discussing his trial, Mr. Coxey said the whole thing was arranged beforehand; that the jury knew they must consict aim and that the whole scheme was to get him locked up for a long enough time to have the army leaderless, and thus bring about its dismem-

He says he will be at the Capitol every day for a week or more before starting off on his campaigning tour with Browne.

Sugar Again Leads the List as the Active

NEW YORK, June 12 .- There was little or noth and although the closing prices in most cases and the trading was as a rule irregular and un-settled. The activity was confined to three stocks-Sugar, St. Paul, and Burlington and prominence in the dealings, was the only other stock in which the transactions exceeded $,000 shares.

Sugar was weak at the opening on sales of a block of stock bought before the recent advance on which profits were taken; when this was out of the way a good buying movement was in-augurated by brokers of the sugar clique, and as prices meved upward the shorts began to cover, swelling the volume of the purchases and causing a steady advance. The early decline was $\frac{1}{2}$ and a pain of $\frac{1}{2}$$ was made. There was $\frac{1}{2}$$ and a pain of $\frac{1}{2}$$ was made. There was a good deaf of stock bought in o close out short accounts in view of the closing of the books for the dividend to-morrow.

In the late dealings Sugar reacted $\frac{1}{2}$$, leaving a net gain of $\frac{1}{2}$$ Sugar preferred advanced 1 per cent. St. Faul was bought by London and the room traders during the morning, and rose $\frac{1}{2}$$ to $61$$, subsequently losing $\frac{1}{2}$$. The speculation in the stock was strengtheased by a report that the company had sold its bonds at figures near the current outtailion on the exchange. Burington and Quincy opened at an advance of $\frac{1}{2}$$ and then on selling orders, believed to be mainly for the Boston account, broke 13\frac{1}{2}$$, closing at a recovery of $\frac{1}{2}$$ per cent.

The raid on Burlington was made in the hope of bringing out some long stock, but did nor most with any measure of success. Chicago Gas fluctuated between 76\frac{1}{2}$$, and 77\frac{1}{2}$$, closing within $\frac{1}{2}$$ of the top price at an advance of $\frac{1}{2}$$ on the day. the day. There was no news on the street affecting this stock.

The deciaration of the regular Western Union dividend was followed by a semi-official statement that it was fully earned during the past quarter. It had the effect merely of moving the stock up ½. On the other hand, the declaring of the usual dividend on Manhattan resulted in a gain for the shares of 1½ per cent. Both events had a slightly good influence on the general market, and the fact that no gold was withdrawn for shipment to Europe to-morrow also was a favorable factor of the speculation.

In the late dealings the market was dull and steady to firm, some few shares showing signs of weakness, and at the close the speculation was fairly firm. Harmonizing Carriers' Legislation. There will to-day assemble in this city, at the rooms of the Interstate Commerce Commission, representatives of various bodies having an interest in the harmonizing of state and federal legislation in the regulation of the business of common carriers. The meet-ing had its inception at the last annual con-vention of railread commissioners held in this city in May, at which time a report was adopted recommending the appoinment of a committee of five members to confer with representative from the National Beard of Trade, the National Transportion Association, the laters ate Commerce Commission and the transportation interests regarding amendments of the blacks of the National Section 1988. ments to the interstate commerce law

To-day Capt, Randall will inaugurate his Wednesday 6.45 p. m. trips to Indian Head. are designed said, and on the speedy Samuoi J. Pentz the moonlight evenings are most enjoyably spent. The Pentz leaves as usual, at 6.45 a. m. and 1.45 p. m., for River View to enable mothers and children to spend a day in the country. Espata's band will be in attendance all day and evening.

Sensational Removal of a Doortender at the Board of Trade. Curcago, June 12.-Theodore Nevins, on of the doorkeepers of the board of trade, was taken off in the smallpox ambulance to-day. He was attending to his duties as usual, un aware that the reddish eruption on his neck and face had any connection with the dread and face had any connection with the dread disease.

He must have spoken to and been in contact with dozens of the members before the true cause of the eruption was discovered. Those who had been compelled to rub against him in passing in and out are feeling rather uncomfortable. Some wild talk of the board of trade having been quarantheed was premature, no action of that sort having yet been taken.

The galler at the time Nevins, condition became known contained fifty visitors, who fied thoroughly alarmed. It is said that Nevins has been ill with the disease three weeks and all the time on duty.

VASSAR'S COMMENCEMENT. Closing of the College Year at the Great

POUGHERPSIE, N.Y., June 12 -The graduating class of Vassar College held exercises in celebra tion of class day this afternoon. The seventy one graduates, with the other students, faculty and guests completely filled the college chapel, which was decorated with daisies and pink carnations, the class flower. The president of the nations, the class flower. The president of the class, Miss Blanche Ferry, presided.

After an ovenestral selection Miss Ferry delivered the address of welcome to the guests. The cration was made by Miss Ellen Dundas Chater. A soprane sole was rendered by Miss Ada Lombard, and Miss Leonora Howe read the class history. Following the chapel exercises the class free was dedicated, and the ceremony of burying the chas records performed.

On behalf of the graduates, Miss Melvine Vankleek delivered the class spade to the juniors, and

On behalf of the graduates, hiss Meivine vani-leek delivered the class spade to the juniors, and the latter's reply was made by Miss Anna Jennette Graham. But Will felt a grant pang of pity for poor Poll as well as for his aunt's agony on her account, and just then the bird's screams were heard above the crackling of the flames and the rouring of the wind.

Without pausing to reflect a moment he dashed in through the smoke-binded door-way. The crowd, which had been too much paralyzed with annacement to hold him back, called after him in dismay.

"All right now, sonny?" said his uncle, affectionately.

But before he was able to reply the door was fung open and in rushed his aunt, the most comical figure that ever was seen, her venerable head still hidden in an immense nightenp and her long, lank person enveloped in a gray blanket.

"Oh, where is the boy? Where is my brother Tom's son?" she exclaimed, "Have I killed him?"

"Oh, no; he's better now. He was only

"Oh, no; he's better now. He was only overcome by the heat and excitement," said the minister, reassuringly.

Will lifted his head and smiled upon her. "Oh, will!" she cried, kiesing him through her tears, "I've been an awfully hard, wicked old woman, but—I'm going to buy Squire Norton's place down to the Corner 'n' you shall come 'n' live with me 'n' go to the 'eademy 'n' have everything you want that I can provide for you. You do look like your father—my poor, dead brother Tom—you look like him this minute!"

"He does look like brother Tom, he certainly does!" squenked Poll, who was fast becoming restored to her usual lively state of mind.

And Miss "Caroline" Pinkham was as good as her word. From that night she was a changed and softened woman. Even Dobby, the old servant, became less sour and grim, and the little housenoid became as cheerful a one as any in the town. Will was very happy, for it had long been his heaft's desire to go to the madeny, and he was devoted to his aunt, who seemed to have transferred all her affection from Poli to him. Polf flourished bravely for many years, however, and she and Will were the best of friends to the day of her death.

But he did come out again. It seemed hardly the space of a moment before he resppeared, bringing Poll with him, who, judging by the noise she made, was still sound, and by the noise sae made, was still sound, and dropping the cage at the feet of her overjoyed mistress he fell senseless to the ground.

When he came to his senses once more he was lying on a lounge in the sitting room of the parsonage, which was situated on the other side of the church, with several anxious faces bending over him.
